

Position Papers and Preparation	Topic Knowledge	Communication	Debate Engagement	Leadership and Diplomacy
- Has a clear understanding of their assigned country's position and policies on the topic. - Has consulted a variety of credible sources. - Presents thoughtful and relevant proposed solutions.	- Demonstrates an exceptional command of the complexities of the topic. Proposes solutions that facilitate compromise beyond just financial initiatives. - Adheres to their country's position. - Understands the implications of the topic for other countries and uses this to help set the agenda.	- Engages in clear, confident, and effective public speaking. - Effectively communicates with relevant parties during unmoderated caucuses. - Uses MUN-specific language to structure and organize written documents such as position, working, and resolution papers.	- Uses active listening to move the debate along with relevant dialogue. Builds onto the dialogue, including responding to the voices of other bloc positions. - Proactively uses the time for unmoderated caucuses to make progress. - Realistically responds to any emergency situations during the debate.	- Is consistently working towards building consensus in the committee; this does not necessarily mean they are the loudest voice. - Moves the agenda forward, making progress on agenda points. - Creates realistic blocs and facilitates the direction of working and resolution papers.

Delegates will be assessed on the following scale:
Rarely	Sometimes	Often	Consistently	Above and Beyond
The delegate almost never demonstrates these descriptors. They are in the early stage of developing in this area.	The delegate inconsistently demonstrates these descriptors. They are in the process of developing in this area.	The delegate demonstrates these descriptors regularly and only needs occasional reminders and support. They are a generally strong performer in this area.	The delegate methodically demonstrates these attributes. They are a very strong performer in this area.	The delegate demonstrates these attributes above and beyond their peers. Is a top performer in this area.